

EGV – Embroiderers Guild Victoria

We had some representatives Heather McDougall, Susan Simonet and Sam Nicol from Embroiderers Guild Victoria on the 18th of February.

Heather was talking about the history of this Australia wide organisation and how they started the guild in victoria. Sam with much enthusiasm told us his story of how he as a retired farmer became a devoted and passionate member of the guild.

Susan told us about the variety of embroidery what members of the guild are producing and we learned that embroidery is rather an umbrella term for a form of art work what is created by using needles and materials such as wool thread and canvas.

Similarly to us Embroiderers Guild Victoria is offering involvement, social connection, cognitive stimulation and mateship to those who are not looking for competitive work stress and financial stability anymore, but rather wanting to learn a new skill in a friendly and relaxing environment.

Embroiders Guild Victoria is a non-profit organisation promoting education, sharing and community. They have branches all around the state and their headquarter is in Wattletree Rd. Malvern. Everyone is welcome who wanting to learn traditional and contemporary embroidery and textile art. Ph: (03) 9509 2222
